This dynamic program on ECOWOMANIST WISDOM invites us all to enter into a communal space of critical learning about the contemplative modes of inquiry. Opening to God through an invitation to listen to the earth is one way to become spiritually centered in the midst of working for justice. Using critical inquiry into environmental ethics, and contemplative reflection on the ethical and moral guidelines of how to care for the earth, can inform and encourage spiritual activism, which is activism based on spiritual beliefs, or religious convictions. Contemplative practices, quieting the mind and honoring divine insight to "be still" can sustain us in justice work. All are welcome!

Registration Fee $60; Tuition $200
